Theology

The music program of the seminary, greatly enhanced by the addition of the choir, was also greatly enhanced by the musical talents of students and faculty. (Right) Organist Brad Page is accompanied by Rob Lamborn, Dale Sarles, and Amy Bentley. Nancy Reiser (behind Brad) assisted Susan Rupert before leaving to take a job in Jacksonville, FL. Susan Sloan (far right upper) took on another persona as one of the auctioneers for the Spouses' auction, as did her fellow auctioneer Bill Carlin (far right lower).

Mary Jo VanZandt, Sandra Brown, and Kendra Lopez (right) discuss the auction's progress. Middler Carol Arney, meal guru for both weekday lunches and the Thursday evening dinner, sits at her station outside the refectory.

Celebrate . . .

the Mountain. This theme launched a $91 million fund drive in the fall of the year and also set the tone for many activities which took place both at the School of Theology and in the College of Arts and Sciences. Such a theme serves to highlight the many activities and relationships which are a part of life on the domain. Through happy times and sad, through tears and laughter, through arguments and reconciliations, we at the School of Theology celebrate our lives together — what we learn, how we serve, and what we take with us when we leave to celebrate in God's creation.

Old Testament scholar, author, and professor Walter Brueggemann (above left) was the DuBose lecturer in October. Professor Brueggemann challenged and delighted the students, faculty, staff, and alums who crowded into his lectures. Professor Bob Hughes (above right) checks on the progress of the main dish at the annual rising senior party which he and his wife host for seminarians each year. The Thursday dinner (left) gave seminary families a chance to meet and eat after the family eucharists. Reed Freeman, Sarah Carper, Brad Purdom, Dave Basinger, Ken Herzog, and Dan Brown (above) take a break in the student lounge — home of coffee, tea, and unwinding sessions.

Celebrate . . .

Just Celebrate! It's a word that is used in a variety of ways but it has special significance at the School of Theology. We celebrate our lives together but we also celebrate the gifts which we have received from God and we celebrate Christ's presence among us when we gather to break bread together and to worship. Celebrate . . . it is what we do and how we respond to our creator and to God's creation.

Servers and celebrant Marion Hatchett gather in the sacristy (above left) prior to a Wednesday eucharist. Bob Hughes takes a spark from the new fire (above right) that will be carried into the chapel by way of the Pascal Candle during the celebration of the Great Vigil of Easter. The clergy, led by thurifer Diane Hill and Claire Lofgren (above), prepare to begin the procession for the Vigil. Senior Matilda Dunn (right) practices celebrating the eucharist during a senior liturgics class. Such "dry runs" were a highlight for the senior class.

Senior Keith Talbert (far left) installs the latest chapel addition — a bell — so that the times to worship services might be ringingly broadcast throughout Hamilton Hall. The choir (left) gathers in the liturgics classroom for a last minute practice and warm-up before a Wednesday eucharist.

Celebrate . . .

the effort. Being part of a college campus means being a part of sports. The Theologs gave undergraduate teams a run for their money in football, basketball, and softball, and even for those who didn't "dress out" for the events, the intra-mural athletics provided great entertainment for seminarians and their families.

The mighty Theolog football team — gender inclusive! — (above left) represented the School of Theology well. Melanie and Andrew Wright (above right) relax and enjoy the festivities from a grassy location. Allen Hughes and Bob Creamer (above) share conversation at a Sewanee Tigers game in the autumn. Assistant University Chaplain Annwn Myers and son Pierce (right) cheer on the Theologs. Dixon Myers, Annwn's husband and director of the Chapel outreach ministry, was among the players for the Theologs.

Junior Judy Ferguson (right) shows her number and enters a bid at the spouses' auction. Always well-attended, the auction is fun even if you are outbid! Midler Alicia Schuster (far right, upper) spent many of her non-studying moments as one of the seminary sacristans. Susalee Spruill (far right, lower) joined the seminary staff as the receptionist for Hamilton Hall.

Junior Reed Freeman and Linda Basinger (right) go over the sales records for the auction, keeping track of what has been purchased by whom and for how much. Systematic theologian Bob Hughes and his wife Barbara, a prominent artist (far right), dance to the music at the post-GOE celebration.

Celebrate . . .

the times we have together. Although there is no doubt that studying (or, at any rate, talking about it) occupies a huge chunk of any student's day and night, relaxation and fun are never very far from anyone's mind. The same energy that goes into assignments can quickly be redirected to blowing off steam and re-energizing for the next round of assignments, papers, and exams.

The Spouses' Organization Annual Auction (top left) always plays to a packed house. Meals and merchandise are offered on the block to the highest bidder and proceeds go to fund outreach projects. Tricia Templeton and Amy Bentley (top right) enjoy a party moment. Middler Amy married senior Rob Lamborn in May of 1994. Andy Anderson (left) models the latest in Anglican party headgear while Angie Trotter, Gretchen Ratterree, Polk VanZandt, Virginia Monroe, and Ray Kasch do their version of a Sewanee line dance (above).

Joyce and Dale Sarles (right) take a break during DOCC raining. Dale came from Alaska to join the Extension Center this year. Sam Lloyd (far right) addresses the crowd which assembled to bid farewell to Sam and his family when he resigned as University chaplain to go to Trinity Church in Boston.

Deneen Patton, Beverly Meaker, and Susan Cox (right) are charged with the not small task of keeping the Dean's office and the faculty business running smoothly. Charles DuBois (far right, upper) heads up Pastoral Theology and is an invaluable resource for planning life after the Mountain. Bill Hethcock (far right, lower) is the School of Theology professor of homiletics.

Billy Terrell and Sarah McGregor (right) are two of the crew who keep Hamilton Hall running and who greet all of the students cheerfully each morning. Bishop-in-Residence Bishop David Birney (far right) assisted both in the Senior Seminar and in job scouting for graduating seniors.

Celebrate . . .

the people who make a difference. The School of Theology would be merely a concept without the people who serve it and those students who come for one, two, or three years to learn and grow and then go out into the world in service to God and the Church. Faculty and staff doors are always open and shoulders are always available and the influence which these people exert upon students remains with students long after they have left the Mountain.

The Very Reverend Guy Fitch Lytle III (upper left) serves as dean of the School of Theology as well as the purveyor of all things Anglican in the Anglican Studies curriculum. The Right Reverend Duncan M. Gray, Chancellor of the University, confers with Vice-Chancellor Sam Williamson (top right). Bishop Gray served as interim chaplain after Sam Lloyd's resignation. Liz Camp (left) is one of the first voices an inquiring student hears and, as registrar, keeps track of all students' records. The Extension Center (above), headed by the Reverend Ed DeBary, has spread Sewanee's fame throughout the world with the EFM program, DOCC, and Practically Christian.
